THE GREAT FENIAN FIASCO!

FULL PARTICULARS OF THE RAID!

Names of the Killed and Wounded!

(From Correspondence Toronto Globe, June 24th.)

CLIFFORD, June 3.
When the enemy was first signalled in eight, two miles from Ridgeway, the advanced guard, No. 5 Company, Queen's Own, armed with Spencer repeating rifles, immediately extended from the centre, while No. 1 Company extended to the left and No. 2 to the right. No. 3 supporting centre companies followed. No. 4 the left. No. 6 were detached on the flank. These were afterwards recalled to the main road leading to the rescue, took ground to the right in four by six lines, fronted and formed support to the centre and rear of No. 3; this position taken up, the skirmishers advanced about a mile before the enemy was discovered. A halt was then sounded, and fire was opened by the enemy along the whole line.

Among the first shots was that which carried its deadly message to Ensign McEachern, of No. 5 Queen's Own, in charge of the 4th section of Company 5, and who had found cover with his men under a rail fence. He rose on his knees and looked at the enemy, when he received a ball in the abdomen, which passed almost entirely through his body. He fell, with the exclamation, "I am shot!" and was carried to the rear. He was quite sensible up to the time of his death, and occupied the last time he had to live in sending through Captain Edwards and others messages of affection to his wife. He was attended in his last moments by the Rev. Mr. Birwath, of Hamilton. He was sick, but would not be invalided previously. Just before death he remarked that he had often dreamt of dying thus, and said it was realized.

His death was a very heavy loss to the army. To resume, the enemy advanced on our right, occupying high ground on the edge of the wood. The University corps, under acting Captain Whitney, being ordered to advance and extend skirmishing line to the right, the Highland company further extending to prevent their being flanked. The fire on this part of the line was very heavy, and continued so, but as the enemy fell back to their right, the fire was directed upon No. 6, which had ground to the left front, holding a road, orchards and farm buildings, on their advance line. The buildings were a strong position for the enemy, and was supplemented by a lane or road, from which they were speedily dislodged by a very heavy fire from No. 6 Company, Capt. Adam. This place gave evidence of the severity of the fire which had been maintained upon the Fenians, for there were quantities of their accoutrements thrown away—rifles, overcoats, jackets and canteens strewn the ground in all directions.

A circumstance which is commendable and which proved of great importance, worthy of being repeated in future engagements as a means of encouraging the men, the officers of many companies were seen to use the rifle themselves, discarding their swords.

No. 6 Co.—the junior Co. in the battalion, gallantly braved and attracted the admiration of the whole. After this position had been retained for some time ammunition was getting low, and while holding the position the right wing of the 13th Battalion of Hamilton was extended and advanced to relieve the skirmishers. Owing to their advance, the main body of the Fenians were driven back, mounted leaders appearing on the road, creating the idea that they had cavalry who were about to charge.

The Hamilton 13th battalion had by this time advanced and continued marching to within 60 yards of the Fenian line, when some unaccountable way they were halted. A few of them including several officers, nobly came up to the advance line. The position of the skirmishers was still maintained for a short time, but the enemy advancing in full force, the line was compelled to retire, and the retreat commenced, the men retiring sullenly and keeping up a sharp fire.

No. 9 University and the 10th Highland suffered severely from this time, as their position was much exposed, at a distance from the main body and quite at the rear. No. 1 Company, under Captain Brown, was ordered to advance to protect the retreat and cover the main body; but, finding themselves unsupported and the Fenian fire so heavy, they were ordered to retire, and they did, keeping up a sharp fire on the advancing Fenians.

It was at this time that Ensign Fahy, No. 1 Company, was shot in the leg, and Lieut. Campbell, of No. 6, received a wound in the arm. Captain Bostead, when the panic seized the men, which was caused by the want of support and failure of proper commands being given by the commander of the brigade, was knocked down by the retreating men and trampled upon, receiving severe injuries in the breast. He was carried by his company as most of the wounded, by other comrades, a considerable distance, and exhibited, as did all the wounded, a disregard for their injuries.

A retreat now became inevitable, the failure to seize either the houses on the flanks or to deploy, making it absolutely necessary in order to save the column from being cut to pieces. The Fenian advance maintained a very steady fire, but were apparently checked by the fire of the retreating column. To resume the narrative of the retreat. The column commanded to retrace their steps, repeatedly kept up a rattling fire upon the enemy, and made stands on the way to check the advance of the enemy. The exertions made by the gallant Major Gilmer to preserve the organization of his regiment and effect an orderly retreat, was particularly noticeable. The exertions of Ensign Fahy, No. 4 Company, in the same direction, were also very noticeable. He heroically appealed to Col. Booker to halt the brigade. He at length took possession of the Colonel's horse, and, drawing his revolver, forced the head of the retreating column, ordering them to halt and form up to arrest the progress of the Fenians. The gallantry of the University company cost them very severely. They held their post until the last moment, and suffered in killed and wounded more than any other company. We may also mention the coolness of No. 6 Victoria and No. 8 Trinity College, of the Queen's Own; and particularly of the Caledonia Rifles, which were very conspicuous. These companies rallied several times and formed on their covers in an orderly manner, as if on parade. The York Company also deserves honorable mention, having specially distinguished themselves in action.

I must not omit to call attention to the bravery of a number of the London Scottish Highlanders who had volunteered to serve with the Highlanders under Capt. Gardner, who, by the way, also deserves praise for efforts to maintain a bold front before the advance of the Fenians. This gentleman, and Color-Sergeant Lockie, his tall figure conspicuous by the gray kilts of the regiment to which he belonged, was continually seen in the rear of the retreating column, firing, loading and halting to deliver his fire as coolly as if on parade. His gallant conduct elicited the warmest admiration from his comrades of the brigade.

While the column was retreating, two members of the University company No. 9, Queen's Own, Private D. Junor and Corporal Ellis, were taken prisoners by the Fenian forces; the former whilst staying behind to attend to his wounded comrade, the latter being overtaken by the Fenians. After being captured they were marched with the rearward of the Fenians as far as Ridgeway, where they met the main body of the Fenians returning from the pursuit, and afterwards marched with them to Fort Erie. The two gentlemen speak in the highest terms of the treatment received at the hands of the Fenians.

Ensign Whitney, of Trinity College, who, during the action was in command of the University company, their officer not arriving in time for the action, showed great bravery in leading his company up to within fifty yards of the Fenian line, fearlessly exposing himself to the fire of the enemy.

Private J. B. Robinson, Trinity College Rifles, was struck by a Fenian bullet through the heart, but miraculously escaped, he having a penny in his waistcoat pocket which shivered the bullet in three pieces, leaving him only very slightly hurt and able to march with the column.

Private Bland, of Trinity College, was struck by a bullet, which took off the button on his shoulder, doing him no injury. About the last man struck was Ensign Fahy, Queen's Own, which was covering the retreat. He was using the rifle of a fallen comrade, and when he fell he was left in a neighboring house and treated kindly by the Fenians.

Several members of No. 5 Co., Queen's Own, had a narrow escape from being captured by the Fenians through their perseverance in remaining out among the very last of the skirmishers; Sergt. L. A. Ratnay, Corporal Bland and P. R. Elliot only escaped by the thoughtfulness of a farmer's wife, who supplied them with disguises, by means of which they made their way safely to Port Colborne.

Sergt. Molotsh, same company, had his reticule cut off, and was secreted for a time in a farm house. Sergt. Foster, No. 7 Company, was struck by a bullet opposite the house, tearing his dress and grazing the skin, but leaving him otherwise uninjured. Private Alderson, No. 7 Company, Queen's Own, was shot through the heart, and Private Tempest of No. 9 University Rifles, was shot through the head while doing their duty as brave soldiers.

Private McKenzie also of University Rifles, was shot dead in the wood, and Private Newburn, of same company, died from exhaustion. These were all honor men of the University, Toronto.

The retreating column arrived at Port Colborne in the afternoon, the Fenians having given up the pursuit at Ridgeway Station. It was expected, however, that during the night an attack would be made upon the town, and all the men were accordingly kept at their posts, to patrol the streets and the neighboring country.

At 4 a.m., on Sunday, the column commanded by Capt. Akers, of the Royal Engineers, proceeded by train to within two miles of Ridgeway Station, from whence they marched to the attack, and on the morning they struck the road leading to Fort Erie, passing the battle-field of the day before.

Although they expected every moment to come across the enemy, the skirmishers marched without interruption, and the column arrived at Fort Erie late on Sunday afternoon, having had a very fatiguing march with hardly a moment's rest without sleep for three days. The 13th battalion, under Col. Booker, was left on guard at Port Colborne.

PORT ERIE, June 3.

This morning the remainder of the Fenians left Port Erie at 2:30 o'clock, hauled by a tug. The Michigan brought these to bay by a shot, took possession of the scow, and she is now attached by a hawser to the steamer and guarded by cutters. Many of the Fenians remain on this side scattered through the woods, and are being brought in as prisoners.

The whole of our force is now in Fort Erie. The Queen's Own went down by boat this morning. Col. Peacock moved there early, and Col. Lowry got in at about nine o'clock.

The raiders I have ascertained, were actually moving on the Welland Canal, when they were stopped so gallantly by the Volunteers on the Fenians. Although our men retreated, the Fenians were handled too badly to pursue; and, after taking counsel, and hearing that Fort Erie had been occupied by King's corps, they determined to escape, many of them having been killed or wounded. They cleared King's small force out of Fort Erie after a brave resistance, and then waited till the tug and scow were sent from the other side.

Dr. King's leg has been amputated on account of a wound in the foot.

General O'Neil, the leader of the raiders, described as a perfect dare-devil, perfectly fearless of danger.

The Fenian prisoners. Twenty-one of the Fenian raiders captured at Fort Erie, were on Monday brought to this city. Great curiosity was evinced by those of our citizens who happened to be on hand to see real live Fenians. It was found—the imagination to the contrary—that they were neither elephants, hippopotami, chimpanzees, nor demigods, but ordinary human bipeds, with about the same characteristics of physique and manner as ordinary specimens of the human race. On arrival, they were at once conveyed to the gaol.

Shortly before 1 o'clock to-day, they were subjected to examination by the Police Magistrate, Capt. Prince, and Mr. John McNab, County Crown Attorney, who extemporized a tribunal in the gaol. It must be said that they are not a very hard looking lot. Most of them seem to be the unconscious dupes of wicked men—carried away by blind but culpable fanaticism. A medal was taken from one of them, named Davis; a watch from Rev. Father McMahon; and two other watches and half-a-dozen pocket books from others. One of them, Norton, is slightly wounded in the left hand and right eye.

IMPOSING FUNERAL PROCESSION. On Tuesday afternoon, the bodies of five of the brave men who recently fell in defence of their country, were received in their last resting-place, with imposing civic and military honours. During the forenoon, the bodies of Corporal Delries and Private Anderson, were carried in procession from their late residences to the drill-shed. The flight of steps at the east of the shed, and the wall behind were draped in black, and a platform was constructed in front for the reception of the coffins. These were exposed for several hours to allow the citizens to view the remains of the gallant men. The coffin of Ensign McEachern occupied the middle and front positions, covered with the Union Jack; that of Corporal Delries was placed on the right, and that of Private Anderson on the left. The coffin of the late Color-Sergeant Lockie, his tall figure conspicuous by the gray kilts of the regiment to which he belonged, was continually seen of the Queen's Own who had accompanied their fallen comrades to the city. The procession started from the Drill Shed at 3:30.

CARRIAGES. The procession moved up Simcoe street to King, along King street to Parliament street, and up Parliament to St. James' Cemetery, the band of the 47th Regiment playing the Dead March, and the bells of the city tolling. An immense concourse of people thronged the streets, and every window along the line of march was crowded by mournful countenances. The shops were all closed, and a majority of the citizens wore badges of mourning. The procession was about half a mile in length.

On arriving at the cemetery, the coffins were taken from the catafalque and placed upon the steps leading to the church, and the Lloydown rifle company ranged themselves on each side as a firing party. The burial service of the Church of England was read by the Rev. Mr. Grassie, Rector of St. James' Cathedral; Rev. Mr. Boddy, curate of the cemetery chapel; and Rev. Mr. Williams, garrison chaplain. The musical service was conducted by Mr. Carter and the choir of St. James' Cathedral, and consisted of the introductory sentence, "I am the resurrection and the life," chanted while the corpses were being removed from the catafalque, the anthem "I heard a voice from Heaven," and the hymn "Nearer my God to Thee."

The service over, six volleys were fired over the remains of the dead, and they were removed to the vault of the chapel. The immense concourse then slowly moved away and dispersed over the city. Never, perhaps, has such an imposing funeral procession been seen in this city.

(Special Despatch to the Globe.)

WOODSTOCK, June 6.—The funeral of the late Major-General Sir John A. Macdonald, of the Queen's Own of Toronto, who fell in the action on the 21st instant, took place this afternoon, at 3:30, from the farm, near this place, and passed through the town to the place of interment—the Presbyterian burying-ground. All business has been entirely suspended since 3 p.m., to pay a last tribute to the respected brave despatch from his notary-mandating officer states that he fell a gallant and noble soldier. The hand being at the front, its services cannot be secured.

GRIEF FOR THE DEAD. Fort Hope, June 5.—Great excitement has prevailed here, for the sympathy for the wounded and for the relatives of the dead of the Queen's Own, is universal. All places of business were closed this afternoon in their honor. Bells were tolling and flags flying half-mast. The people are enthusiastic in their praise of the Queen's Own.

A New and Grand Epoch in Medicine.—Dr. MAGNET is the founder of a new Medical System. The quantitative, whose vast internal doses capable the stomach and paralyze the bowels, must give precedence to the man who restores health and appetite with from one to two of his extraordinary pills, and cures the most virulent sores with a box or so of his wonderful and all-healing Salve. These two great specifics of the doctor are fast superseding all the stereotyped nostrums of the day. Extraordinary cures by Magnet's Pills and Salve have opened the eyes of the public to the inefficiency of the (so-called) remedies of others, and upon which people have so long blindly relied. Magnet's Pills are not of the class that are swallowed by the dozen, and of which every box taken creates an absolute necessity for another. One or two of Magnet's Pills suffice to place the bowels in perfect order, tone the stomach, create an appetite, and render the spirits light and buoyant. There is no griping, and no reaction in the form of constipation. If the liver is affected, its functions are restored; if the bowels are torpid, they are invigorated. This last quality makes the medicine very desirable for the wants of delicate females, nervous and eruptive diseases are literally extinguished by the diffracted power of Magnet's Salve. In fact, it is here announced that Magnet's Pills, Dyspepsia and Diarrhoea Pills cure where all other pills fail. While for Burns, Scalds, Chilblains, Cuts, and all abrasions of the skin, Magnet's Salve is the best. A Resturant (First Street, New York, and all Druggists, at 25 cents per box.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—Nervous Debility—Persons constitutionally weak and so much depressed by changeable weather that the ordinary offices of life become a labor, the necessity of this king a coil. The nervous system is unbalanced, and each day brings forth such pitiable objects, that a succession of real or fancied miseries. To escape from such torments it is only necessary to take Holloway's Pills, which purify and strengthen a debilitated, shaken constitution. They cure where all other medicines fail. In short, they cleanse the body from all impurities, give tone to the stomach, regularly to the bowels, kidneys and bladder. They remove dejection of spirits and bodily lassitude, and restore to the mind decision and cheerfulness.
